

Peggy Duxbury
Director, Government and Legislative Affairs
Seattle City Light

Peggy Duxbury has served as the director of government and legislative affairs for Seattle City Light since September, 2006. Prior to that, she was vice president of government and environmental affairs for Calpine Corporation, where she was responsible for the company's environmental business strategies, including developing business support for the Northeast Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative (RGGI) and California's AB 32.

She served as a policy advisor for President Clinton's Council of Sustainable Development and before that was a research fellow at Harvard Business School, where she helped establish a curriculum on energy and the environment.

Prior to entering the energy field, Peggy worked at MCI Communications and as the director of tax policy for the National Association of Manufacturers. She started her career as a legislative assistant to Congressman Bill Frenzel.

She holds a BA in economics and political science from Old Dominion University and a MPA from the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.
